

Palestine technical university research journal publishing ethics and rectitude

Scientific publication is a comprehensive, careful, and regulated process carried out by both the publishers and the editors. This process requires high proficiency and competencies. It's very essential to maintain high level and standard on ethical issues of publication. PTUKRJ ethics statement is basically targeting journal editors, authors and peer-reviewers.

The fundamentals of publishing ethics in the publishing process involve the followings:

Editors' Responsibilities involved in Provide clear guidelines to authors on preparation and submitting process, clear statement of journal authorship policies. Authors and their scientific work submitted should be treated objectively, honesty, transparency and highest confidentiality. Established and effective peer review system, with rational speed and clear communication channels.

Authors' Responsibilities: Submitted manuscript must report only original data and free from any kind of plagiarism, the work shouldn't be published before or submitted to any other journal simultaneously. Authors must acknowledge any potential conflict of interest during submission process. Author/s must acknowledge the support provided from any (entity /organization/ institutions) in his manuscript. Authors must mention only the name of co-authors whom substantially contributed to the configuration and construction of the manuscript
